WIRES TO RETURN TO FORMER OWNERS

Order Issued by Postmaster-General Affects Control of Seymour Mutual Telephone Co.

EFFECTIVE AT MIDNIGHT

Government Supervision Over Telegraph Systems Ends—Authority Goes to Commission.

The order which has been issued by Albert S. Burleson, postmaster general and chief of the federal wire administration, proclaiming that all communication systems taken over by the government shall go back to their original owners at midnight tonight, affects the Seymour Mutual Telephone Company. The business of this company was taken over several months ago under the blanket order issued by President Wilson, but it has been known here for some time that government control would likely cease at midnight July 31.

The Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies are also released from federal control by the order. It is rumored that with the transfer back to the stock corporations a rate war may be precipitated at least in some sections of the country. The local offices had received no information relative to the change which would indicate that there is not to be any radical difference in the methods of operation.

The surrender by the government of control of the telephone companies means that the matter of rate difference will again revert to the state commission instead of the federal bureau for adjustment. The release of the Seymour Mutual Company from government control has a special significance here inasmuch as the management of the company is expected to carry its rate increase application to the commission as jurisdiction of the system.

It is said that the management of the local company has petitioned the Indiana public service commission to hear the pending appeal at its earliest opportunity. According to the recent decision of the city council upon the recommendation of the special committee representing the chamber of commerce, the city will employ an engineer and accountant to represent the patrons when the case comes before the commissioners. Recently there has been some talk of making another effort to reach a compromise with the company, inasmuch as considerable expense will be encountered in presenting the case before the commission and many believe that a slight increase will be given the company.

The telephone company today announced that beginning tonight it will again accept calls for certain hours during the day and will also give the correct time to subscribers. Such service was prohibited by the federal wire administration.

SEYMOUR MAY BE DISTRICT CENTER

State Highway Commission Considers Methods of Keeping The Market Roads in Repair.

PATROL SYSTEM IS PROPOSED

Program Calls for Construction and Repair of 3,500 Miles of Roadway in Eight Years.

The designation and construction of main market highways is only a part of the work that devolves upon the state highway commission for after the roads are completed and open to traffic proper maintenance to keep them in first class condition is essential. The problem of repair is already receiving attention and several plans are proposed. One that appears to be favored and which has been used with success in other states is the motor patrol system.

Under this system the main market highway would be divided into districts. A supervisor would be appointed for each district. Headquarters or centers would be established throughout the state for the various districts. As Seymour is located at the junction of the Cincinnati-Evansville road and the Indianapolis-Louisville road, this would be the logical point for a district center. Indianapolis will likely be the state headquarters under the proposed sys-

OPEN DISCUSSION OF PEACE TREATY

Senate Foreign Relations Committee Shatters Precedent of One Hundred Years.

FINANCIAL EXPERT HEARD

New Custom is Established Without Dissenting Voice,—Simply by Common Consent.

By United Press
Washington, July 31—Shattering a century of precedence, the senate foreign relations committee today began actual consideration of a peace treaty in public session.

Bernard M. Baruch, financial expert, who has been an adviser of the American peace mission in Paris, was to appear before the committee, explaining many features of the economic clauses. The committee planned to ascertain just as definitely as possible from the experts who advised on the drawing of the treaty how the United States is affected by the complicated financial and economic provisions which impose a substantial portion of the peace settlement.

But the real significance of today's meeting of the committee, in the view of many senators is that it sweeps aside the senate's traditional policy of deep secrecy in consid-

TELEGRAPH RATES WILL BE REDUCED

Indiana Public Service Commission Orders Twenty Percent. Reduction Within State.

INCREASE MAY COME LATER

Lower Schedule Will be Effective at Midnight When Government Surrenders Control.

By United Press

Indianapolis, July 31—Interstate telegraph rates in Indiana will be reduced twenty percent, in Indiana tonight. This will result from the action of the public service commission today in denying the petition of the Western Union Telegraph Company to retain the present high rates made effective by the federal wire administration.

The wires go out of federal control at midnight tonight and it was found by the commission that there is no provision in the federal enactment for the rates to be retained. As a result telegraph rates between Indiana points will be the same as they were before the war.

The commission stated that later it will consider a petition to increase rates, if the companies file it.

The black belt where most of the arson and rioting has taken place was calm today, patrolled by 6,200 militiamen and members of the Illinois national guard.

The troops were sent to the negro district last midnight. More than 100 shots were fired on them when they made their appearance they returned the fire. No casualties have been reported. Arriving in pitch dark streets in army trucks, the soldiers took their places on street corners, returning lead whenever snipers attempted to fire at them. Rain-fall shortly after their arrival routed disturbers.

The downpour also helped to quench more than 150 fires at various points within the black district.

Thousands of negroes have fled the disturbed areas, many of them seeking refuge in other and quieter sections of the city and in Evanston, where there already was a negro colony. Many others went to Milwaukee and other Wisconsin towns. Several hundred were said to have gone south to Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama, where they formerly lived.

IMPROVEMENTS FOR THE THIRD WARD

consulted concerning the matter have readily consented to allow the

which the city engineer was ordered to make an estimate at the last session. However, the property owners were ahead of time as no action had been taken in the matter further than ordering the estimate made. They were instructed by Mayor Burkart that it would be necessary, according to law, that they be notified before the improvement was ordered, so that they could remonstrate, they that desire. Owing to new developments it is likely that the Blish street sewer will be dropped for the present. Henry Kasper, speaking for Blish street property owners, stated that a big majority of the residents were opposed to the improvement and would remonstrate against it should steps be taken to make the improvement.

The sanitary conditions in the city, for which the garbage removal contractor is held responsible gave cause for considerable discussion in the council session. Several of the councilmen reported that they were receiving numerous complaints lately that the man who has the garbage contract had not been making his rounds regularly. A motion was passed by the council ordering the contractor to give more attention to the work in compliance with his contract.

Robert Hall, city engineer filed his estimate on the cost of the proposed Brown street sewer which was $2,100.51. The proposed sewer is to begin at Carter street running east to the intersection of Broadway thence north on Broadway to the intersection of High street, an approximate distance of 1,928 feet.

Perry Collins, councilman at large, reported that Third street between Walnut and Ewing streets, is in need of improvement. Councilman Buse also reported that Bruce street between Walnut and Chestnut streets, was badly in need of repairs. A committee was appointed to investigate and decide on some action to improve the street.

Councilman Ireland brought up the matter of numbering houses. This matter was before the council some time ago but no action was taken.

However, it is the decision of the councilmen that the houses should be numbered and the name of the streets placed at each corner. The matter was continued until the city attorney can be consulted, to see if residents can be compelled to display house numbers. If there is not already an ordinance ordering all houses to be numbered, it is likely that some action will be taken immediately.

A petition was presented to the council signed by John Gallimore asking that the property-owners on North Bill street between Ninth and Tenth streets be ordered to improve the sidewalks in front of their property with cement. Owing to the fact that Mr. Gallimore owns the majority of lots along that part of the street, the prayer of the petitioner was granted. Others affected by the order of the council are Harry Reed and R. F. Buhner.

John Fleeharty, assistant fire chief, appeared before the council and asked that some repairs for the fire hose be ordered. The matter was referred to the fire department committee of the council with orders to purchase what repairs are deemed necessary. Several other minor matters were taken up by the council and the claims against the city were read and ordered paid after which the council session was adjourned. The bills were ordered paid as follows:

CHAPTER III.

Until he reached the age of twelve George's education was a domestic process; tutors came to the house, and those citizens who yearned for his taking down often said: "Just wait till he has to go to public school; then he'll get it!" But at twelve George was sent to a private school in the town, and there came from this small and independent institution no report, or even rumor, of George's getting anything that he was thought to deserve; therefore the yearning still persisted, though growing gaunt with feeding upon itself.

The yearners were still yearning when George at sixteen was sent away to a great "prep school." "Now," they said brightly, "he'll get it! He'll find himself among boys just as important in their home town as he is, and they'll knock the stuffing out of him when he puts on his airs with them! Oh, but that would be worth something to see!" They were mistaken, it appeared, for when George returned a few months later he still seemed to have the same stuffing. He had been deported by the authorities, the offense being stated as "insolence and profanity;" in fact, he had given the principal of the school instructions almost identical with those formerly objected to by the Rev. Malloch Smith.

But he had not got his come-uppance, and those who counted upon it were embittered by his appearance upon the downtown streets driving a dog-cart at a criminal speed, making pedestrians retreat from the crossings, and behaving himself as if he "owned the earth."

When Mr. George Amberson Minafer came home for the holidays at Christmastide in his sophomore year, probably no great change had taken place inside him, but his exterior was visibly altered. Nothing about him encouraged any hope that he had received his come-uppance; on the contrary, the yearners for that stroke of justice must yearn even more itchingly: the gilded youth's manner had become polite, but his politeness was of a kind which democratic people found hard to bear.

Cards were out for a ball in his honor, and this pageant of the tenantry was held in the ballroom of the Amberson mansion the night after his arrival. It was, as Mrs. Henry Franklin Foster said of Isabel's wedding, "a big Amberson-style thing." All "old citizens" recognized as gentry received cards, and of course so did their dancing descendants.

The orchestra and the caterer were brought from away, in the Amberson manner, though this was really a gesture—perhaps one more of habit than of ostentation—for servants of gayety as proficient as these importations were nowadays to be found in the town. It was the last of the great, long-remembered dances that "everybody talked about"—there were getting to be so many people in town that no later than the next year there were too many for "everybody" to hear of even such a ball as the Ambersons'.

George, white-gloved, with a garland in his buttonhole, stood with his mother and the Major, embowered in the big red-and-gold drawing room downstairs, to "receive" the guests; and, standing thus together, the trio offered a picturesque example of good looks persistent through three generations. The Major, his daughter and his grandson were of a type all Amberson: tall, straight and regular, with dark eyes, short noses, good chins; and the grandfather's expression, no less than the grandson's, was one of faintly amused condescension. There was a difference, however. The grandson's unlined young face had nothing to offer except this condescension; the grandfather's had other things to say. It was a handsome, worldly old face, conscious of its importance, but persuasive rather than arrogant, and not without tokens of sufferings withstood. The Major's short white hair was parted in the middle, like his grandson's, and in all he stood as briskly equipped to the fashion as the exquisite young George.

Isabel, standing between her father and her son, caused a vague amazement in the mind of the latter. Her age, just under forty, was for George a thought of something as remote as the moons of Jupiter; he could not possibly have conceived such an age ever coming to be his own: five years was the limit of his thinking in time. Five years ago he had been a child not yet fourteen; and those five years were an abyss. Five years hence he would be almost twenty-four; what the girls he knew called "one of the older men." He could imagine himself at twenty-four, but beyond that his powers staggered and refused the task. He saw little essential difference between thirty-eight and eighty-eight, and his mother was to him not a woman but wholly a mother. The woman, Isabel, was a stranger to her son; as completely a stranger as if he had never in his life seen her or heard her voice. And it was tonight, while he stood with her, "receiving," that he caught a disquieting glimpse of this stranger whom he thus fleetingly encountered for the first time.

Youth cannot imagine romance apart from youth. That is why the roles of the heroes and heroines of plays are given by the managers to the most youthful actors they can find among the competent. Both middle-aged people and young people enjoy a play about young lovers; but only middle-aged people will tolerate a play about middle-aged lovers; young people will not come to see such a play, because for them middle-aged lovers are a joke—not a very funny one. Therefore, to bring both the middle-aged people and the young people into his house the manager makes his romance as young as he can. Youth will indeed be served, and its profound instinct is to be not only scornfully amused but vaguely angered by middle-aged romance. So, standing beside his mother, George was disturbed by a sudden impression, coming upon him out of nowhere, so far as he could detect, that her eyes were brilliant, that she was graceful and youthful—in a word that she was romantically lovely.

He had one of those curious moments that seem to have neither a cause nor any connection with actual things. There was nothing in either her looks or her manner to explain George's uncomfortable feeling; and yet it increased, becoming suddenly a vague resentment, as if she had done something unmotherly to him.

The fantastic moment passed; and even while it lasted he was doing his duty, greeting two pretty girls with whom he had grown up, as people say, and warmly assuring them that he remembered them very well—an assurance which might have surprised them "in anybody but George Minafer!" It seemed unnecessary, since he had spent many hours with them no longer than the preceding August. They had with them their parents and an uncle from out of town; and George negligently gave the parents the same assurance he had given the daughters, but murmured another form of greeting to the out-of-town uncle, whom he had never seen before. This person George absently took note of as a "queer-looking duck." Undergraduates had not yet adopted "bird." It was a period previous to that in which a sophomore would have thought of the Sharon girls' uncle as a "queer-looking bird," or, perhaps, a "funny-face bird." In George's time every human male was to be defined at pleasure as a "duck;" but "duck" was not spoken with admiring affection, as in its former feminine use to signify a "dear"—on the contrary, "duck" implied the speaker's personal detachment and humorous superiority. An indifferent amusement was what George felt when his mother, with a gentle emphasis, interrupted his interchange of courtesies with the nieces to present him to the queer-looking duck, their uncle. This emphasis of Isabel's, though slight, enabled George to perceive that she considered the queer-looking duck a person of some importance; but it was far from enabling him to understand why. The duck parted his thick and longish black hair on the side; his tie was a forgetful-looking thing, and his coat, though it fitted a good-enough middle-aged figure, no product of this year, or of last year either. Observing only his unfashionable hair, his preoccupied tie and his old coat, the Olympic George set him down as a queer-looking duck, and having thus completed his portrait took no interest in him.

The Sharon girls passed on, taking the queer-looking duck with them, and George became pink with mortification as his mother called his attention to a white-bearded guest waiting to shake his hand. This was George's great-uncle, old John Minafer: it was old John's boast that in spite of his connection by marriage with the Ambersons he never had worn and never would wear a swaller-tail coat. Members of his family had exerted their influence uselessly—at eighty-nine conservative people seldom form radical new habits, and old John wore his "Sunday suit" of black broadcloth to the Amberson ball. The coat was square, with skirts to the knees; old John called it a "Prince Albert" and was well enough pleased with it, but his great-nephew considered it the next thing to an insult.

The large room had filled, and so had the broad hall and the rooms on the other side of the hall, where there were tables for whist. The imported orchestra waited in the ballroom on the third floor, but a local harp, cello, violin and flute were playing airs from "The Fencing Master" in the hall, and people were shouting over the music. Old John Minafer's voice was louder and more penetrating than any other, because he had been troubled with deafness for twenty-five years, heard his own voice but faintly, and liked to hear it. "Smell o' flowers like this always puts me in mind o' funerals," he kept telling his niece, Fanny Minafer, who was with him; and he seemed to get a great deal of satisfaction out of this reminder. His tremulous yet strident voice cut through the voluminous sound that filled the room, and he was heard everywhere.

Presently George's mortification was increased to hear this sawmill droning harshly from the midst of the thickening crowd: "Ain't the dancin' broke out yet, Fanny? Hoopla! Le's push through and go see the young women folks crack their heels! Start the circus! Hoopsey-daisy!" Miss Fanny Minafer, in charge of the lively veteran, was almost as distressed as her nephew George, but she did her duty and managed to get old John through the press and out to the broad stairway, which numbers of young people were now ascending to the ballroom. George began to recover from the degradation into which this relic of early settler days had dragged him. What restored him completely was a dark-eyed little beauty of nineteen, very knowing in lustrous blue and jet; at sight of this dashing advent in the line of guests before him George was fully an Amberson again.

"Remember you very well indeed!" he said, his graciousness more earnest than any he had heretofore displayed. Isabel heard him and laughed.

"But you don't, George!" she said. "You don't remember her yet, though of course you will! Miss Morgan is from out of town, and I'm afraid this is the first time you've ever seen her. You might take her up to the dancing; I think you've pretty well done your duty here."

"Be delighted," George responded formally, and offered his arm, not with a flourish, certainly, but with an impressiveness inspired partly by the appearance of the person to whom he offered it, partly by his being the hero of this fete, and partly by his youthfulness—for when manners are new they are apt to be elaborate. The little beauty intrusted her gloved fingers to his coat-sleeve, and they moved away together.

As he conducted Miss Morgan through the hall toward the stairway they passed the open double doors of a cardroom, where some squadrons of older people were preparing for action, and, leaning gracefully upon the mantelpiece of this room, a tall man, handsome, high-mannered and sparklingly point-device, held laughing converse with that queer-looking duck, the Sharon girls' uncle. The tall gentleman waved a gracious salutation to George, and Miss Morgan's curiosity was stirred. "Who is that?"

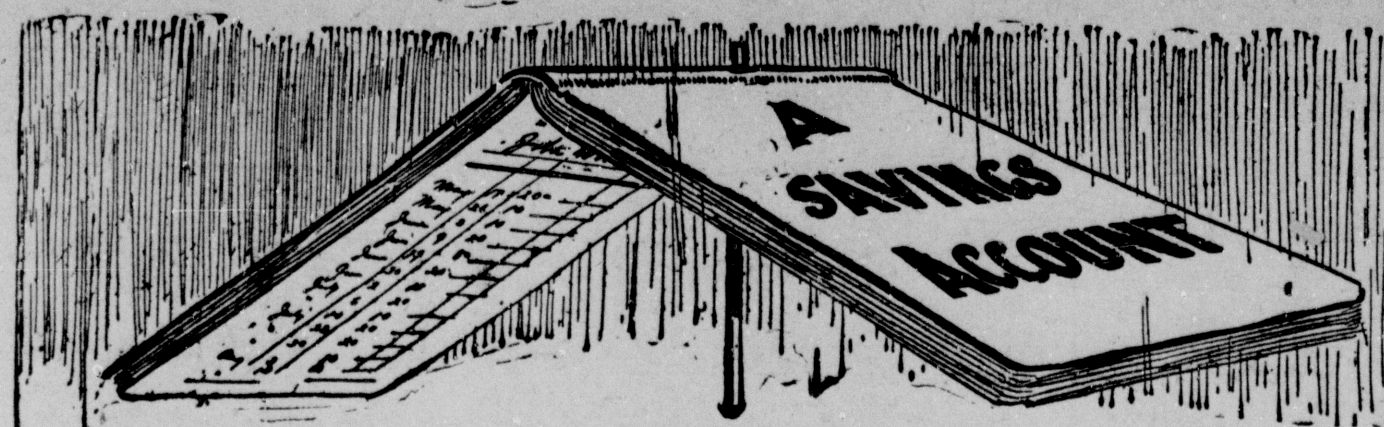

"I didn't catch his name when my mother presented him to me," said George. "You mean the queer-looking duck."

"I mean the aristocratic duck."

"That's my Uncle George. Honorable George Amberson. I thought everybody knew him."

"He looks as though everybody ought to know him," she said. "It seems to run in your family."

If she had any sly intention it skipped over George harmlessly. "Well, of course, I suppose most everybody does," he admitted—"out in this part of the country especially. Besides Uncle George is in congress;

the family like to have someone there."

"Why?" "Well, it's sort of a good thing in one way. For instance, Uncle Sydney Amberson and his wife, Aunt Amelia, they haven't much of anything to do with themselves—get bored to death around here, of course. Well, probably Uncle George'll have Uncle Sydney appointed minister or ambassador or something like that, to Russia or Italy or somewhere, and that'll make it pleasant when any of the rest of the family go travelling, or things like that. I expect to do a good deal of travelling myself when I get out of college."

Sydney was an Amberson exaggerated—more pompous than gracious; too portly, flushed, starched to a shine, his stately jaw furnished with an Edward the Seventh beard. Amelia, likewise full-bodied, showed glittering blond hair exuberantly dressed; a pink, fat face cold under a white-hot tiara; a solid, cold bosom under a white-hot necklace; great, cold, gloved arms, and the rest of her beautifully upholstered. As George ascended the broad stairway they were precisely the aunt and uncle he was most pleased to point out to a girl from out of town, as his appurtenances in the way of relatives. At sight of them the grandeur of the Amberson family was instantly conspicuous as a permanent thing: it was impossible to doubt that the Ambersons were intrenched, in their nobility and riches, behind polished and glittering barriers which were as solid as they were brilliant, and would last.

HAS FINE MOTOR TRIP

J. P. Ahl Drives to Effingham County, Illinois.

C. B. Cooper has received the following letter from J. P. Ahl relative to his recent trip by motor from this city to Mason, Ill., Effingham county:

Mason, Ill., July 29, 1919.

Friend Cooper:

No doubt you will be pleased to know something about my trip.

We started on our trip on Saturday morning and made our trip on splendid time arriving here at Mason, Ill. at 7:00 p. m. new time. Although handicapped by rough roads, we made the trip without even a hot engine and I wish to say that your F. B. is a wonderful car, and am equally as well pleased with it as I was with my Four Ninety.

This trip has fully tested out the merits of the Chevrolet 1919. Found relatives all well but crops poor on account of a drought that has extended over several weeks. When I take in the crop situation here and enroute, no place looks quite so good to me as old Seymour and Jackson county. I expect to make my return trip on about the 10th of Aug.

With best regards to you and everyone.

I am yours etc.,

DIXON—LUEDTKE.

A quite but very pretty wedding took place at 9 o'clock Wednesday evening, July 30th, 1919, at the Methodist parsonage, when the Rev. Charles W. Whitman pronounced the impressive ceremony that united in marriage Mr. John W. Luedtke and Miss Mary Dixon, both of this city. The groom is the popular son of County Auditor Albert Luedtke of Brownstown, and has only recently returned from overseas service, and is employed as an engineer on the B. & O. R. R. and has proven himself worthy of the heart and hand of the one who last evening promised to love and cherish him until death annuls the marriage vow. The bride is the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Mrs. Emma Dixon of Ft. Ritner, but has for some time past made her home with her brother, Charles F. Dixon and his estimable wife on West Second street, and has held a position at W. L. Federmann's drug store, where she has made many admiring friends, won by her amiable, sweet disposition and lady-like deportment, and now as she enters upon the new life opening up before her, she will share their earnest wishes for that happiness she so well deserves. The happy couple went to Ft. Ritner this morning to spend a few days with the bride's mother, after which they will return to this city and begin housekeeping as soon as a suitable house can be procured. Mr. and Mrs. Luedtke have the heartiest congratulations and good wishes of a host of friends here and elsewhere.

SEYMOUR MAY BE DISTRICT CENTER

tem. The district centers have not been designated, but the matter of road maintenance is one that is to receive the early attention of the highway commission.

The construction program calls for 3,500 miles of resurfaced roadways during the next eight years. The program will be completed before April 1.

L. H. Wright, director of the commission, estimates that at least $2,000,000 will be expended for maintenance in 1920. The program laid out for the maintenance department provides that the entire mileage of the state system will be brought up to first class condition during the spring and summer of next year.

The creation of the maintenance department, which will entail the employment of several hundred men, has been drafted in a general way by Mr. Wright and J. M. Kimmel, superintendent of maintenance. These plans when fully formulated will be presented to the commission.

According to the rough drafts of the plans, the state will be divided into five districts. Each district will be headed by a district engineer who will oversee the construction and maintenance in the counties in his jurisdiction. As now planned, there will be from seventeen to twenty counties in a district.

District engineering offices will be located in cities preferably in the geographical center of the district. The selection of these district centers has not been determined, but it is probable that Indianapolis will be the headquarters of the central district. The other districts will be composed of groups of counties in the southeast, southwest, northeast and northwest parts of the state.

Each of the districts, according to the tentative plans, will be subdivided into sections embracing three or four counties. A superintendent will be appointed to oversee the state highway activities in each section. The superintendent will have charge of the section office and equipment building, in which will be housed the motor trucks used in maintenance and the rollers, graders, scarifiers and other large highway implements.

The superintendent will be in direct charge of the patrolmen who will be placed in charge of from five to fifteen miles of highway each. Following the practice that has proved successful in other states the entire state system will be divided in patrols with one man responsible for the condition of the stretch of highway within the limits of his patrol. The length of the patrols will depend entirely upon the kind and condition of the highway. On gravel and poor roads the patrols will be from five to eight miles in length, while on hard-surface roads the patrols will probably be fifteen miles long.

On the longer patrols the patrolmen will be provided with a motor truck, while on the shorter patrols teams will be used. The patrolmen will repair ruts and washouts, keep culverts clear, cut the weeds from the sides of the highways, trim the lower branches from trees that obstruct views on the inside of sharp curves and perform other work that will bring the roads up to a high standard.

The superintendent of the section will have a "floating gang." This gang will be provided with motor trucks and will take charge of any bad stretch of road in the section that needs resurfacing. It is said that a great many roads that have been improved and have a good base can be converted into excellent highways with a three-inch layer of bituminous macadam or asphaltic concrete. Other roads can be brought up to a fair standard by the floating gang by scarifying and grading.

Whitewashed warning fences are to be placed along sharp curves in the roads. Mile posts will be generously distributed and direction signs painted in a phosphorescent paint that will be visible at night will be placed throughout the system.

Increases Granted.

By United Press

New Castle, July 31—Employees of the city water plant, the police and fire departments were granted an increase of $10 a month in salary, upon petition of the water works employees and the patrolmen. The increases will cost the city between $1,600 and $1,700 for the remainder of the year, which exceeds the appropriations for the departments affected.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ferguson and seven children, of near Cortland, were called to St. Louis Crossing this morning on account of the illness of Mrs. Ferguson's sister, Mrs. Mollie Elkins.

COUNCIL OPPOSED TO TOWNSHIP SEWER

Officials Notified That Petition is Pending in Circuit Court for High Street Sewer.

WILL BENEFIT LAND OWNERS

City Will be Expected to Share One Third of Expense Estimated, at About $10,000.

The city officials have been notified of a petition pending in the Jackson circuit court for a township sewer which will begin on High street and extend east from the city limits to the Honan ditch. The petition was filed by George Aufenburg, E. C. Bollinger, et al., and commissioners have been appointed to view the proposed improvement.

The notice of the petition received by C. W. Burkart, city mayor, was read at the city council Wednesday night but in the absence of John M. Lewis, city attorney, no action was taken in the matter. However several of the councilmen expressed themselves as being opposed to the proposed improvement on the grounds that the city would not be benefited enough to justify sharing one-third of the cost which the petitioners are asking.

The engineer's estimate of the proposed improvement fixes the cost at about $30,000. The city's cost would be about $10,000 and it is the opinion that very few would be benefited by it in the city. It is also understood that a large number of the property owners are opposed to the improvement.

The matter is now pending in circuit court and will come up for a hearing at the October term. Providing the council sees fit to take a stand against the improvement the city attorney will likely be instructed to oppose it when the case comes up in court.

morning was one of the severest of the summer. The lightning was vivid and the peals of thunder were sharp. The storm brought local showers which in some vicinities served to bring relief from the long drought.

Rain fell along the Yankee road and the clouds seemed to move from the west to the east. There was little rain within two miles of the city, although a light shower fell here during the night. It was not sufficient to settle the thick dust.

Rain fell in scattered sections throughout the county. There was a heavy shower three miles north of Cortland, while a half mile from the rain belt the shower was not sufficient to lay the dust in the road. In some places farmers reported good rains while on adjoining farms the drought was not broken.

The drought has reached the point where much of the corn is being damaged and unless rain falls soon the crop will be cut short. Potatoes and other crops are suffering.

Thunder showers are predicted during the next twenty-four hours.

Miss Ethel Hotchkiss and Clarence Wiesman, of Crothersville, were in this city Wednesday evening to attend the band concert at the city park.

HOTEL COMPANY PROPOSED HERE

Ray R. Keach Organizes Movement to Buy Second Street Property for New Hotel.

ARRANGEMENTS TO BUY LOT

Number of Local Business Men Agree to Furnish Capital to Acquire The Site.

The proposal to erect a new hotel in Seymour gained impetus today with the announcement that Ray R. Keach is back of a movement to organize a hotel company and that capital had already been raised to purchase the lot at the corner of Second and Ewing streets as the probable site. This lot which is owned by an Indianapolis man is to be sold at public auction next month. The sale was originally announced for next Saturday, but the date of the auction has been changed.

Mr. Keach stated that he had taken the matter up with a number of local men and that ten had agreed to buy the lot, if the price is fixed at a reasonable figure. He said that he was certain that he could organize a company here that would furnish sufficient capital to build a modern hotel building which would be managed on an up-to-date scale.

A meeting of the men who have agreed to take over the lot will probably be held tonight or tomorrow when final decision will be reached.

It develops that other hotel plans are on foot here. A movement has been under way for some time for a company of local men to take over the New Lynn hotel property, remodel it and conduct a modern hostelry. It seems assured that one or the other plans will take definite form within the next few weeks at the latest.

It seems to be the prevailing opinion of those interested in the hotel project that two large hotels here would not be profitable for either company and before any movement is completed, it is likely that an agreement will be reached, as those back of the plan are looking to the best interests of the city and the traveling public, rather than towards financial investment.

Miss Irene Vogel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vogel, is confined to her home on South Bill street with typhoid fever. Her condition is considered quite serious.

PRISONERS ON PAROLE FROM STATE PRISON

Men Arrested by Posse Early Tuesday Morning Confess to Sheriff H. L. McCord.

Harry Burrell and M. A. Price, the two men arrested by a posse in the western part of the county Tuesday morning that had hunted them for two nights and a day for breaking into a house near Heltonville and stealing money from an aged lady, have told H. L. McCord, county sheriff, that they are both out on parole from the state prison at Michigan City. Sheriff McCord has written the authorities at the state prison concerning the men and provided they are wanted there it is likely that they will be turned over instead of being taken to Bedford to face a housebreaking charge which has been placed against them.

Burrell told the sheriff that he was arrested in Terre Haute several months ago on a grand larceny charge and was sentenced to serve a term in the state prison. However, he was sent to the prison under the name of White. Price has been an inmate of the state prison for over eight years. He told the sheriff that he had violated several paroles and was returned to that institution.

Sheriff McCord expects to take the men to Bedford Friday and turn them over to the Lawrence county authorities where they are wanted on the housebreaking charge providing word is not received from the state prison authorities ordering him to return the men there. Burrell and Price were paroled about a month ago they told the sheriff, and were sent to Laporte, Ind., to work on a farm. They stated that they went there and delivered the papers which were given them by the prison authorities to give to the farmer. They say that he showed them where to sleep but they did not like the appearance of the sleeping apartment so they did not stop over night but continued to roam the country, which they had done until captured Tuesday.

KURTZ.

The Kurtz All Stars had another easy victory Sunday, when they defeated the Freetown Apple Knockers at Freetown with a score of 16 to 1. This made the fifth straight victory, and left the All Stars with a percentage of 1,000. Manager Sprague, of Freetown, used three pitchers trying to stop the winners, but they kept insisting on losing the pill. The winners got three home runs from Sprague in the eighth inning. The batteries were: Apple Knockers, Jackson, Sprague, Forney, Bebout. All Stars, Freeman and Lucas. The Apple Knockers have promised to make a better showing when they return the game August 3rd.

Miss Fern Kindred returned home from Anderson Saturday after a visit with relatives and friends there.

Mrs. Jeff Cope returned to her home at Seymour Saturday after an extended visit here with Phil Pfennig and family.

Samuel Wineinger remains about the same.

FARMERS PLAN FOR BIG FEDERATION

nois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, Nebraska, Kentucky, Missouri and Indiana were present and that the sentiment appeared unanimous in favor of establishing a central division of the proposed national organization. Mr. Taylor was elected as the Indiana representative on a committee appointed for the purpose of drafting a constitution and by-laws. The special committee is to meet in September to work out the details which are to be presented at a called national convention to be held in Chicago on Nov. 12 and 13.

The Indiana state convention of the federation is to be held in Indianapolis on Nov. 18, and any action or suggestions passed upon at the national gatherings can be gone over at the local meeting. This fact makes the date of the Chicago meeting especially desirable according to officers of the Indiana organization.

ters in this city yesterday from H. D. Irwin, second vice president of the United States Grain Corporation, to the effect that he had started his investigation of the test in Indiana in which a miller paid only $2.11 for No. 1 wheat. This is the case backed by the state organization in an effort to obtain a ruling as to what should be the "reasonable handling charge" as stipulated by law.

Previously a complaint had been registered by the federation, and the government wheat officials declared that a specific case would have to be called to their attention before an investigation was conducted. An early ruling is expected in the case, which has attracted state-wide attention.

A HOT SPOT Chalmers Shuns a Repair Shop

MANY of the large Chalmers merchants of America report that it costs them but $3 per car, per year for service. They have had so very, very little trouble with the car that their figures have come down to a point reached, we believe, by no more than one or two cars.

There's good reason for this. Most car troubles come from two sources:

1. Poor lubrication.
2. Excessive vibration.

Hot Spot and Ram's-Horn aid and make sure an extraordinary lubrication of the engine, and provide such silky smoothness in power that few persons can tell, whether in the car or at the curb, if the engine is running.

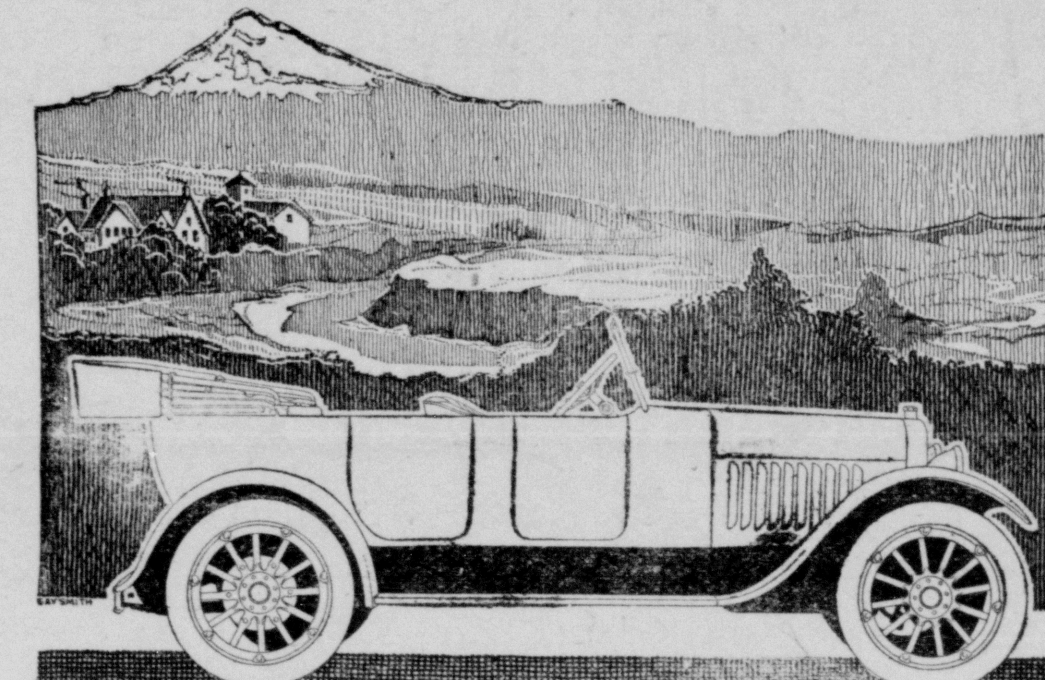

Moreover, Hot-Spot and Ram's-Horn add to the long life of car and engine; and hence endear it to the owner.

A repair shop is shunned. Let us tell you just exactly how Hot-Spot and Ram's-Horn do the trick. It's well worth any man's time; and not to know is to be behind the times.

Opponents In Bitter Controversy

JOHN SKELTON WILLIAMS      LOUIS T. MCFADDEN

The renomination of John Skelton Williams, of Virginia, to be Comptroller of the Currency for another five years after a Democratic Senate refused to confirm his nomination at the last session foreshadows a continuance of the fight against Williams' confirmation. Representative McFadden, of Pennsylvania, a member of the Banking and Currency Committee, is leading the House opposition to continuance of the Comptroller's office. He is author of a bill to vest the function of the office in the Federal Reserve Board, asserting that Williams' conduct of the office has demonstrated the danger to the country which lies in the abuse of large powers granted to individual Federal officers when those officers are inclined to be autocratic. Indications are the Senate will again refuse to confirm Williams.

HEADACHE

Caused by
Acid-Stomach

Yes, indeed, more often than you think. Because ACID-STOMACH, starting with indigestion, heartburn, belching, food-repeating, bloating and gas, if not checked, will eventually affect every vital organ of the body. Severe, blinding, splitting headaches are, therefore, of frequent occurrence as a result of this upset condition.

Take EATONIC. It quickly banishes acid-stomach with its sour, bloating, pain and gas.

It aids digestion—helps the stomach get full strength from every mouthful of food you eat. Millions of people are miserable, weak, sick and ailing because of ACID-STOMACH. Poisons, created by partly digested food charged with acid, are absorbed into the blood and distributed throughout the entire system. This often causes rheumatism, biliousness, cirrhosis of the liver, heart trouble, ulcers and even cancer of the stomach. It robs its victims of their health, undermines the strength of the most vigorous.

If you want to get back your physical and mental strength—be full of vim and vigor—enjoy life and be happy, you must rid of your acid-stomach.

In EATONIC you will find the very help you need and it's guaranteed. So get a big 50c box from your druggist today. If it fails to please you, return it and he will refund your money.

The Most Welcome Tire That Ever Came to Market

Men Who Appreciate Superlative Values Prefer The Brunswick

In every great tire factory, the chief question is: "How much can we give for the money?" And the product depends on the policy adopted.

Every man who has become acquainted with Brunswick Tires knows that Brunswick standards are again evident. This famous concern—noted as a leader in every line it entered since 1845—has once more proved that its policy is right.

A perfect tire is simply a matter of knowledge and standards and skill. No secrets nor patents prevent making an ideal tire.

But standards come first. For in tire making there is vast room for skimping, for subtle economies, for hidden shortcomings. Makers without the highest standards don't build high-grade tires.

The Brunswick organization of tire makers includes a brilliant staff of technical experts. Not a man among them has spent less than 20 years in handling rubber.

Each is a master of his craft. And the new ideas they bring to the attention of Brunswick directors receive sincere consideration.

Every proved betterment is adopted unanimously.

The Brunswick Tire is a combination of acknowledged features—plus Brunswick standards of manufacture.

The result is a super-tire, the like of which you have never known before. The kind of a tire you will gladly join in welcoming.

Yet Brunswicks cost no more than like-type tires.

Try ONE Brunswick. We promise a surprise. And we feel certain that you will want ALL Brunswicks.

Then good tires will have a new meaning to you.

MORE RED BLOOD AND STEADIER NERVES FOR RUN DOWN PEOPLE

The World Demands, Strong, Vigorous, Keen-Minded, Men and Women

It has been said of Americans that they work their habits overtime.

Many become nervous and inefficient by overwork.

By worry, despondency, social affairs, robbing brain and body of needed rest; excessive use of tobacco, indulgence in strong alcoholic drink—excesses of every kind that burn up the vital powers so necessary in these trying times to make both men and women fit to be of help to themselves and others.

It is time to be temperate in all things. The man or woman with impaired nerves caused by impoverished blood lacks vigor, the ambition, the endurance and the keen mind of those who avoid excesses.

Timidity, despondency, fear, trembling hands, want of confidence and even cowardliness, are due in a large measure to abused nerves.

People with plenty of red blood corpuscles and strong, healthy nerves have no desire to shirk work and lean on others for guidance and support.

There is hardly a nerve-shattered man or woman (unless of an organic disease) in America today who cannot become alert and clear in mind; vigorous and energetic in body in a very few weeks and at trifling cost.

To become strong and ambitious, to feel that work is not drudgery; to have steady nerves, abundance of red blood and power of endurance; to be not only a man but a man now go, a superman, you must take seven tablets of Bio-feren every day for seven days—and take them faithfully.

Take two after each meal and one at bedtime and after seven days take one only after meal until the supply is exhausted.

Then if you feel that any claim made in this special notice is untrue—if your nerves are not twice as steady as before; if you do not feel ambitious, more vigorous and keen-minded, the pharmacist who dispensed the tablets to you will gladly hand you back just what you paid for them.

Bio-feren is without doubt the grandest remedy for nervous, rundown, weak, anaemic men and women ever offered direct through druggists and is not at all expensive. All druggists in this city and vicinity have a supply on hand—sell many packages.

Training Little Children

By Helen Campbell.

Suggestions by mothers who have been kindergartners. Issued by the United States Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C., and the National Kindergarten Association, 3 West Fortieth Street, New York.

School had opened in the district and all through an exciting day, all varieties of the four-year-old, accompanied by all types of "the mother," were applying for admission.

Mary's mother, of calm, firm, but gentle bearing, stepped forward and the duty of registration properly fulfilled, presented her little daughter. Mary possessed the same calm manner as her mother and in addition a strange childlike dignity and poise of her own. Her two little bright eyes bespoke thought and understanding as she stood there on the alert for every question, at times even assuming the responsibility of the conversation herself. She had been carefully prepared by her mother for this new period of development and so could face it without fear. Therefore, it was no surprise to us to hear her mother say at the conclusion of her visit: "Mary can take off her coat and wait upon her self. She will not cry, for I told her she was coming to school and explained what she would have to do. She is a great help to me at home and I am sure will give you no trouble." Then, turning to Mary, she waved a "goodbye, dear," and Mary, smiling with satisfaction, sat down in her little chair.

We were not allowed to waste much time with Mary just then for suddenly there was a great pushing to the front and hurried childish sounds of "I'm 4 years old, I'm waxinated, I live at 538 East—, My father's name is Jimmy and he's dead, and I want to come to school every day! Now can I have a little chair? Can I play with your balls, and make houses with blocks, and sew cards and bring home things every other day like all the other boys that go to kindergarten?" When Jimmie stopped to catch his breath, I fully realized that he had made up his mind to come to school, and that, indeed, he was quite ready to do so. When asked where his mother was he said: "She's home, and my big brother he goes upstairs in this school, but I came all alone by myself."

Yes, Jimmie, the youngest of nine, entered school alone, but full of enthusiasm and ambition, with a brain eager for stories and games, and with hands that wanted to work, to learn and to do. Fate had seemed unkind to him, but although a victim of rough circumstances he had developed fortunately and accidentally in the right direction. He turned out to be a most interesting pupil in the classroom and soon became an obedient, law-abiding child.

Two big, blue sleepy eyes, mounted in a great wonderful head, supported by the stockiest of frames, there were the striking characteristics of the next little fellow who stood before me. A poor, indulgent mother held his hat in one hand and his apple in the other, together with a penny to give him when he cried and a basket of cakes for fear he might be hungry. As she pushed her son toward me, she gave his name as Joseph Carlson.

"Good morning, Joseph. Are you glad you can come to school?" No movement of the eyes or face; no sign of comprehension. "He doesn't like to talk very much," his mother answered. Then his cake fell to the floor and when I asked him to see if he was big enough to pick it up, again it was the mother who replied, "He doesn't ever do anything like that," and she stooped and picked up the cake herself.

Her mission of registration over, Mrs. Carlson started to go, but suddenly returned to make these feeble remarks: "You know, teacher, he is 4 years old, but he isn't any good to himself. I have to do everything for him, and if I don't he cries. I know I pet him too much, but try him and see if you cannot teach him something. I can't."

Joseph looked impervious to knowledge, but I had no reason to anticipate that he would prove at all troublesome. "Goodbye, be a good boy," called his mother from the door. For the first time Joseph demonstrated that he possessed some sense of what was going on outside of himself. His screams brought his mother quickly back, and from one penny she raised to two, and finally offered everything she had. But to no avail, for he still continued to stamp and scream. And so I requested her to leave, assuring her that all would be well. With tears in her eyes she said: "Do let me take him home; I think he is very much of a baby." But I was obdurate and refused, for I knew that with every added day of her over-indulgence his road would only grow the harder.

Surrounded by new and lively associates of his own age, Joseph soon forgot his mother and himself, and although he was not very active at first, each succeeding day developed more interest and expression, until finally his mother was able to see a smile on his face when she bade him goodbye at the opening of the morning session.

But the labors we had taken upon our hands with her helpless, pitiful pet! How much harder his little battle through life had been made and how much unhappiness he suffered!

Many a mother thinks the age between 3 and 4 much too early to lay the foundations of self-reliance in her children. She says: "My child is too young to learn yet. When he goes to school he will be taught to do everything and that is time enough." And so she waits upon him day and night, amuses him when he appears silent or lonesome, provides for his every want, and seldom asks him for a response of any kind. In fact, she absorbs his whole personality, impressing her own where his should have a chance to demonstrate itself.

Froebel said: "Our children must learn to do, by doing." Then what happiness, individuality and calm, deliberate deportment even at the early age of 4 they may possess, and what self-control, law-abiding citizens they may become if only mothers will try day by day to develop their self-reliance!

How shall this be done? Just teach your child to dress himself, to wash his hands and face, to lace his shoes, to comb his hair, to button his coat, to use his spoon, knife and fork. Commend his initial tugs and struggles and sooner or later those struggles will be converted into finished actions. And hands so trained at home will later in school life grasp scissors more firmly and handle crayon and pencil with a much finer precision.

Fill the child's day with little responsibilities: The care of a garden, of cat or dog, care of toys and care and proper place for clothes. Help him to anticipate your wants, and give him the joy of waiting upon you. Have him run little errands for your scissors, your needles, your thread. Let him care for baby brother or sister once in a while. There will be lots of time besides for play, and a greater value placed upon play time. Such duties to a child are not burdens, but a real delight, because they develop in him a sense of independence and helpfulness.

Help to reach all the parents of the country by cutting this out and passing it on to a friend.

Peel and slice six large tomatoes and chop two sweet peppers fine, butter a baking dish and put in a layer of tomatoes, cover with half a cupful of cooked rice and chopped peppers, repeat with another layer, season each layer with two tablespoonfuls of butter, a sprinkling of sugar and salt. Bake covered for three-quarters of an hour, then uncover 15 minutes.

GRAPE DAINTY

If you want something a little different and exceedingly toothsome try putting up some grapes pick all off that are not perfect, pack them in sterilized jars. Pour boiling water over them to cover, let stand for a minute, then drain water off. Repeat process twice, then they will lose the white silvery look. Fill the jar just to overflowing with a thick sirup boiling hot and seal. This is a new but fine way to preserve grapes.

LUNCHEON CLOTH

For work during the summer holidays there is none so pleasing as pretty designs in cross-stitch. The luncheon cloth suggested in the illustration is of unbleached cotton cloth with the motif executed in delf blues and rich greens. The edges are buttonholed openly with the deepest blue. This design is suitable for other pieces also.

Crochet cotton No. 70 is used for this dainty baby's cap and needle No. 14. It is made to fit the face by ribbon placed through the slots. The slight fullness of the front is gathered to fit the crown. Finish edges with single crochet and picot edge and ribbon rosettes.

ASK ME! Answers by Carolina Jewett

Dear Miss Jewett: I have received a invitation to an afternoon party, sort of a formal affair, I believe, and am writing to ask you if you believe a pair of brown-ooze-leather pumps dressy enough? They are almost new and I don't feel I ought to afford a pair of black ones so soon.

All right, certainly, especially if you have a nice new pair of silk hose to wear with them.

Dear Miss Jewett: I have seen advertised in one of the mail order house catalogs a "guaranteed" wrist watch for $4.25, supposed to be gold etc. Do you think that such an offer is reliable?

I am afraid you would be disappointed in a "gold" wrist watch at this price. Better patronize a local jeweler then you will be certain of satisfaction.

Dear Miss Jewett: I have streaked up some virtually new white silk stockings which I allowed to soak with some colored things. Is there anything I can use to remove these streaks?

Never soak silk stockings. Wash them in tepid water and pure white soap—the kind that floats is best—and don't try to dry them hurriedly. Hang in the sun if possible. I am afraid nothing will remove the dye stains from the stockings you now have.

Dear Miss Jewett: What is a suitable gift for me to give a young man of 23 on his birthday? We are not exactly engaged but about the same thing. He gave me a very expensive toilet set last Christmas and I would like to give him something on his birthday not more than five dollars. Please advise me this week.

There are a number of things very appropriate that you may obtain in our stores within the price limit you suggest. For instance, a neat black seal leather bill fold or a pair of cuff links may be bought for five dollars. If he is an office man, he would appreciate a neat and serviceable desk clock which you can get for five dollars. Don't give him fabrics or jewelry.

Dear Miss Jewett: How much pay do graduate nurses get in this state?

There is no set price but it all depends upon the nature and length of time on the case and upon the professional standing of the nurse. The minimum expected by a graduate nurse, however, is $25. (a week) and in private homes, she is usually lodged and has her meals served.

Citizenship Schools For Women Voters

Citizenship schools to be held in every ward and precinct of the state is the plan of the Woman's Franchise League, formulated at its Board meeting held in Indianapolis, Tuesday. The object of these schools is to make good the slogan of the organization "Every Woman an Intelligent voter by 1920." The meetings will be held in school houses, churches, in small halls, anywhere that ordinary precinct meetings may be held, and will be open without charge to the public.

These classes and all discussions will be absolutely non-partisan. They will take up the fundamentals of national, state, county and city government, party organization and the machinery of voting, along with some discussion of laws in which women are particularly interested.

This system of schools will begin with a week of intensive training at Indianapolis under the management of the Indianapolis League, to which all suffragists in the state will be invited. This will be followed by similar courses of study in all the Franchise leagues over the state. The classes in the precincts will then be arranged, and will be instructed by members of the leagues who have this training. All the club women of the state are being asked to co-operate in this huge task.

Pamphlets, programs, and other material is now in preparation by the Franchise League and will be in readiness late in August.

Pectin For Fruits That Have Little

Pectin, so the housekeepers who make jelly say, is that constituent of the fruit that causes the jelly to "set," to become firm and solid. Some fruits, however, lack a sufficient quantity of this ingredient or component part to be successfully transformed into jelly. However, they need not be discarded for this reason, for it is easily possible to supply them with sufficient pectin from other sources.

A method of accomplishing this has been explained by the United States Bureau of Chemistry, it having been discovered that the white skin of the orange is rich in pectin, which is as follows: Peel off every particle of the outside yellow skin of an orange—or oranges—cutting it off as thin as possible. Remove all of the white peel. Grind this white peel through the meat chopper and to each well filled cup, pressed down, add the juice of 1 lemon and set it away for 1 hour. Then add 2 cups of water. Put it over the fire, heat to boiling point and allow it to boil for five minutes. Set it aside until the next morning, then add 4 cups of water, heat to the boiling point and boil for 10 minutes. Allow to cool, and then drip through cheesecloth, and later through a jelly bag. This pectin may be prepared, poured into jars while hot, and sealed, sterilized, and put away for later use. The peel, which had been allowed to drain, may be treated again, as described, and a quantity of pectin will be obtained.

Frocks For the Little Girl

Some of the prettiest of the new summer frocks for the little girls—not the very little ones—are made of that attractive Japanese crepe, which comes in so many lovely colors. A color that is being rather extensively featured just now is a lovely shade of lavender, a bluish lavender. A number of frocks that have been made of it were fashioned quite simply, the trimming being, in many cases, nothing more than some fancy stitching in a mercerized thread or threads of a harmonizing color.

One of these frocks, however, had a plain waist, buttoned down the back, of a figured material which looked much like a cretonne of some sort. The yellow flowers and bright green leaves, both somewhat conventionalized, all over it. The skirt was of the lavender crepe, with an interesting bit of trimming which consisted of a spray of the flowers and leaves, cut from material like that of the waist and applied on down toward the deep hem at the right-hand side.

As for trimming with simple embroidery stitches, one of the simplest and also most effective is the old-fashioned deep buttonhole stitch, with which so many housekeepers finished off the ends of their blankets. Of course, in the case of a Japanese crepe and probably most other fabrics, the edges must be hemmed first. This buttonholing may be done with a double thread of one color, or with threads of two or three different colors put together, and sometimes French knots may be combined with it with attractive results.

Frocks, of course, suggest pinafores, unless one is altogether too modern. For little folks—quite little ones—some pinafores were recently shown which immediately caught one's attention, for they were so quaint. The small pattern of a particularly lovely, soft blue, almost wholly covering the white ground it was printed on, reminded one of bits of old-fashioned cambria or calico, seen in those patchwork quilts cherished by fortunate housekeepers as family heirlooms. There was a similar one in pink and another in yellow. They were made in the quaintest, primest, simplest style imaginable and trimmed as to edges, pocket-top—for there was a diminutive pocket at one side—and across the straight yoke, with plain white rickrack braid stitched down as flat and smooth as could be. If it had ever been the custom in the past to take pictures of small children clad in pinafores, instead of their starched Sunday best, doubtless it would be possible to find the counterpart of these little garments in the family photograph albums. Certainly they are quaint and attractive enough to be worn by small folks of today.

Sweet little sun hats to match were also made of the calico or print, and trimmed with bands of the rickrack braid.

Home-Ground Wheat Bread

If clean wheat is available, says the United States Department of Agriculture, it may be ground at home in a coffee mill and the following economical and nutritious bread made:

Over a mixture of 1 tablespoonful sugar and 1 1/4 teaspoonfuls salt in a mixing bowl pour 1 1/4 cups of hot water or skim milk. When the liquid has become lukewarm add one-half cake dry yeast or 1 gill liquid yeast and 1 1/2 cups of home-ground wheat flour. Set over night to rise. In the morning add 1 1/2 cups flour, beat well, put into greased pan, allow to rise until the bulk is doubled, and bake.

An Objectionable Picture

A new movie entitled "O You Women" put out by the Paramount people, is a picture so objectionable to women that the National Suffrage Association is warning the distribution agents that it is sure to call forth denunciation from women all over the country.

OPEN DISCUSSION OF PEACE TREATY

ation of treaties. For a hundred years treaty deliberations, both in committee and before the full senate, have been jealously guarded. No European chancellery took greater pains to keep its state secrets than did the senate.

Now without debate, without a dissenting voice, simply by common consent, this custom has been abandoned.

Open consideration of the treaty in the senate was forecast months ago by Borah and Johnson, but they thought they would have to fight for it.

The reason for the open sessions, well informed members of the foreign relations committee said today, is based on the knowledge that secrecy creates "leaks", that the way to insure both the opponents and advocates of the treaty against distortion of their views as expressed in committee or the senate, is to open the doors and allow the public to get the views of both sides at first hand.

CHICAGO'S DEATH LIST IS GROWING

stolen in a raid on a high school building where it had been placed. Negroes, armed with what was believed stolen arms and ammunition, fought a pitched battle with soldiers and a white mob early last night.

Fortified behind a walled fence around a high school yard, the negroes fired many shots at their opponents, many receiving wounds. The negroes were finally dispersed.

Hints that the Central Postoffice in the heart of the loop will be surrounded by armed guards were made today following declaration by Postmaster Carlile that delivery of mail was being interfered with. Failure of 1,500 clerks, chauffeurs and collectors to report for duty yesterday caused the move, it was said.

The car strike and riots were reasons given for failure of the men to report at the postoffice.

"The instant a riot or strike interferes with the United States mail the power of the national government will be sought," Carlile said.

Hospitals throughout the south side, where the negro settlements are located, have been filled to overflowing with wounded of both races. More than five hundred who have been shot and injured by beatings, are in hospitals, police estimated. Several hundred others received treatment at home, it was believed. Additional pleas for order and regular process of the law were issued by public officials and leaders of both races. Mayor Thompson and Governor Lowden asserted the law must rule and that rioters will be prosecuted.

Save the Ten Cents.

Beginning June 10, a minimum price of fifteen cents for cash, and an additional ten cents when charged, will be made on all classified locals, cards of thanks, or other short locals. If the local is ordered by telephone the money may be sent to the office the same day, before it is charged on our books, and the extra charge of ten cents will not be made.

We find the cost of charging these small items, making out bills and collecting them often amounts to more than the local itself. The extra ten cents that will be charged will partly compensate the office for this extra work and expense. But you can save it by paying cash when the local is ordered. Exception will be made in the case of business firms with whom we have regular monthly accounts.
